DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

The Amendment, filed on October 9, 2003, has been entered and acknowledged by the Examiner.

Examiner's notes

The recitation "may be located", in claim 1, is considered to indicate a certain measure of likelihood or possibility¹, thus, in the following rejections the recitation is considered to be optional or alternative.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hall et al. (US 5,250,874).

Regarding claim 1, Hall discloses an electric lamp (Fig. 2) provided with a lamp cap (48) suitable for contacting an external contact element, which lamp cap (48) is connected to a lamp vessel (10), and which lamp cap (48) comprises a housing (20) and contact members (54) connected to current conductors (14, Column 3, lines 61-62) of the lamp, characterized in that the contact members (54) each comprise a spring (60), a first contact part (56) and a second contact part (58), which second contact part (58) is connected to the first contact part (56) via the spring (60) for rendering the second contact part (58) displaceable relative to the first contact part (56) in a direction transverse to a mounting direction during contact with the external contact member.

Regarding claim 2, Hall discloses an electric lamp characterized in that the first contact part (56), the second contact part (58) and the spring (60) integrally constitute the contact member (54).

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Preziosi et al. (US 3,859,554).

Regarding claim 1, Preziosi discloses an electric lamp (Fig. 1) provided with a lamp cap (56) suitable for contacting an external contact element (54), which lamp cap (56) is connected to a lamp vessel (16a), and which lamp cap (56) comprises a housing (32a) and contact members (44) connected to current conductors (26a) of the lamp, characterized in that the contact members (44) each comprise a spring (49), a first contact part (48) and a second contact part (50), which second contact part (50) is connected to the first contact part (48) via the spring (49) for rendering the second contact part (50) displaceable relative to the first contact part (48) in a direction transverse to a mounting direction during contact with the external contact member.

Regarding claim 2, Preziosi discloses an electric lamp characterized in that the first contact part (48), the second contact part (50) and the spring (46) integrally constitute the contact member (44).

Regarding claim 3, Preziosi discloses an electric lamp characterized in that the first contact part (48) is provided with a further spring (46) for keeping the first contact (48) positioned against the housing under a comparatively high spring pressure.

Claims 1, 2 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hancox (US 4,246,632).

Regarding claim 1, Hancox discloses an electric lamp (Fig. 3) provided with a lamp cap (10) suitable for contacting an external contact element (13), which lamp cap (10) is connected to a lamp vessel (B), and which lamp cap (10) comprises a housing (11) and contact members (22) connected to current conductors of the lamp, characterized in that the contact members (22) each comprise a spring (central portion), a first contact part (portion connected to the bulb) and a second contact part (portion connected to contact 13), which second contact part is connected to the first contact part via the spring for rendering the second contact part displaceable relative to the first contact part in a direction transverse to a mounting direction during contact with the external contact member (Figs. 2 and 3).

Regarding claim 2, Hancox discloses an electric lamp characterized in that the first contact part, the second contact part and the spring integrally constitute the contact member (22).

Regarding claim 4, Hancox discloses an electric lamp characterized in that the second contact part is provided with resilient guiding clamps (23, for engaging contact 26, Column 3, lines 31-59).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed October 9, 2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that the prior art of references fail to teach or suggest the limitations "which may be located at different spacings from said lamp" and "to a degree sufficient to accommodate said different spacings at which said external contact element may be located", however, the Examiner notes that the recitation "may be located" indicates a certain measure of likelihood or possibility¹, thus, the limitation is considered to be optional or alternative.

Art Unit: 2879

Accordingly, the claim does not state an essential requirement for the different spacings.

For the reasons presented above, the rejection of claims 1-6 are deemed proper.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
